

In pre-railroad days there was no city of Hope, the main settlements of Hempstead county being Washington, the political seat; Fulton, port town and head of navigation on Red river; and Spring Hill, commercial center, where goods that had come up the river from New Orleans and been unloaded at the Dooler's Ferry landing were distributed throughout the county.

Spring Hill had some spirited trading, and there is at least one account of a first class price war between its merchants. The story is going to tell you dates back 45 years, but it doesn't seem right here with us today—Lon McLarty, who will be 80 in November.

The Cairo & Fulton railroad (predecessor of the Missouri Pacific) had crossed Hempstead county years before (1873), creating Prescott, Hope, Texarkana, and the other "railroad towns"—but Spring Hill was still a thriving merchandising center. And Spring Hill's main store owner was Jim Moses.

Lon McLarty, who came to Spring Hill as a child when his father, a physician, moved the family there from Georgia, set up a store of his own. Moses, who didn't like competition, asked McLarty what his intentions were.

"Oh," said McLarty "I'm just putting in a little store selling cheese and crackers and soda pop."

Pretty soon another man, named Lewallen, moved in with plenty of money and set up a real store—and competition grew for the old merchant Moses.

About this time sugar was selling for 16 pounds to the dollar.

One morning Moses looked across at Lewallen's store and saw a sign quoting sugar at 16½ pounds to the dollar.

The next morning McLarty's store posted 17 pounds to the dollar.

By this time Moses figured Lewallen was using McLarty to smoke him out—and he came out fighting, offering 17½ pounds to the dollar.

The third morning McLarty brought it up to 18 pounds to the dollar—and the price war continued until McLarty played his final trump: 21 pounds of sugar for a dollar.

But there came a morning when McLarty saw Moses walking over to Lewallen's store, and as Lon told me the story yesterday:

"I knew something was up when these two bitter enemies got together. So I grabbed a broom and started sweeping the porch real fast."

"Pretty soon Lewallen and Moses came over to my place, and Moses asked me, 'Lon, how much sugar you got?'"

"I haven't a pound in the house," I told him, "and haven't had for two weeks."

"Moses said, 'Lon, you take that sign right down. You've already caused me to give away 20 barrels of sugar!'"

And that was the great price war . . . in Spring Hill . . . 45 years ago.

Little Rock, May 8—(AP)—Governor Sid McMath today appointed Dick Huie, Arkadelphia attorney, as judge of Arkansas' eighth judicial circuit.

Huie, former prosecuting attorney in the same district, succeeds Judge Dexter Bush, who died last Saturday. He will serve until January 1, 1933.

Mr. Huie is a graduate of the University of Arkansas and has practiced law in Arkadelphia for about 20 years.

He is a former prosecuting attorney of the Eighth District and a native of Clark county. During World War II he served with the U. S. Navy.

Syrians Accuse Israel of Bombings

Damascus, Syria, May 9—(AP)—Syria early today accused Israel of bombing her troops just as the United Nations security council ordered an immediate cease-fire along the Syrian-Israeli border.

A Syrian army communiqué charged Israel with "heavy bombing" of the Shamshah region north of the Sea of Galilee between 1 a. m. and 3 a. m. (6 p. m. to 8 p. m. EST)—just as the council at Lake Success voted 10 to 0 for the cease-fire.

The communiqué said many shells fell on the Syrian post nearby at Jell Hassel.

"This new aggression," a Syrian military spokesman commented, "took place at the very same minute the security council was giving the cease-fire order at Lake Success."

Syria's representative at the U. N. denied yesterday that his country's troops were involved in the recent armed clashes along the Syria-Israel border but said that his government nevertheless accepted the cease-fire. Israel earlier said it would heed no such order until the withdrawal of Syrian troops which it charged were illegally in the demilitarized zone established between the two countries.

The demilitarized zone was set up alongside the Sea of Galilee by the 1948 armistice which ended the Arab-Jew war in Palestine. Dealing in the area by the Israelis, accompanied by dislodgment of Arab villagers, set off the recent series of clashes.

Israel has charged that the zone awarded to her by the armistice, and other Israeli territory has been invaded by the Syrians. Syria replied that Arab settlers in the area repulsed Israeli army attacks on their homes and accused the Jewish nation of land and air assaults on Syrian forces.

Syria announced last night it had asked the Arab League political committee to meet in Damascus or Beirut on May 15 to discuss the recent border fighting.

Bang's Disease Vaccinations Start Monday

Vaccination of heifer calves for Bang's Disease begins Monday in Hempstead county announced Oliver L. Adams, county agent today.

Joe Hamilton, vaccinator, representing the USDA Bureau of Animal Industry, will be in the county until all requests for the vaccination service are met.

All heifer calves to be vaccinated must be at least four months old and under 10 months of age. There are no charges. Requests for vaccination are to be made at the county agents office by mail or by personal contact. Each owner requesting the calfhood vaccination will be advised as to the date and hour the vaccinator will call at the individual farm.

The calfhood vaccination program was begun in Hempstead county in August 1949. To date 2790 replacement heifer calves have been vaccinated in 799 farm calls.

Calfhood vaccination is the best insurance available for use in the prevention of the loss of calves because of Bang's disease.

Predicts Food Prices to Stay Fairly Stable

Washington, May 9—(AP)—The agriculture department predicted today that currently high food prices will remain fairly stable from now at least until early summer.

This forecast was based upon the assumption there will be no change in the international situation which might encourage scarce buying by consumers.

Supplies of most foods were said to be adequate to maintain civilian consumption at least as large as a year earlier.

Retail food prices for the first quarter of this year were said to have averaged almost 15 per cent higher than a year earlier. Largest increases were reported for meats, eggs, fats and oils, and processed fruits and vegetables.

The department said it is likely food prices will tend to increase more in the latter part of the year. It said the military and export demand will be stronger then and contribute to the upward price pressure started by the Korean war.

"As more of the nation's production is geared to the defense effort and essential industrial capacity is expanded in the latter half of 1951, supplies of some consumer goods—particularly the durable commodities and housing—may be reduced from present levels," the agency said in a report.

"A sharp reduction in the supplies of these goods would further for food and non-durable goods and services, as was the case during World War II and the immediate postwar years. With consumer incomes expanding, price pressures may be greater later in the year."

The department added, however, that price and wage controls, credit restrictions and proposed higher income taxes would tend to limit price rises that might occur.

The average rate of civilian food consumption is expected to be a little higher this year than last and about 14 per cent higher than the prewar average.

As in the past five years, the bulk of the food exports will be grain and grain products, especially wheat and flour. The department said larger exports of these commodities probably will be more than offset by declines in exports of dairy products, dried fruits and other foods. Little meat is being sold abroad.

The department said the civilian supply of meat this year is expected to average 148 pounds, carcass weight, for each individual, compared with 144.5 last year, 126 before the war and a recent peak of 153.4 in 1946.

Iceland Strips Considered Strategic

Washington, May 9—(AP)—Strategic Iceland's airfields will be almost useless for modern American heavy bombers and jet fighters until and unless they can be rebuilt.

None of the runways of the four fields constructed during World War II are long enough for handling fully-loaded warplanes like the B-36 or the swift jet fighters, a check today indicated.

But Iceland—where United States Army, Navy and Air Forces have landed under an agreement with Denmark (owner of Iceland) to help defend the island under the North Atlantic treaty provisions—has two other major functions in guarding against possible Soviet attack across the Arctic:

1. As location for radar air raid warning stations.
2. As a base for submarines and surface craft patrolling the high Arctic latitudes on watch for airborne attackers.

Expensive harbor facilities including fuel storage dumps and unloading piers, were built by the United States during World War II and presumably are still usable after some repair and rehabilitation work.

Iceland, like its big neighbor Greenland, could have another valuable use in the future—as a launching base for long-range guided missiles. However, in addition to the question of whether Denmark would want her territories used for offensive warfare there is the fact that really long-range guided missiles so far are only experimental gadgets and not actual weapons.

The longest runways on Iceland are at the Keflavik airport—four strips of about 6,000 feet. Jet fighters and heavy bombers, taking off with anything except a limit load of fuel and few or no bombs, need from 8,000 to 10,000 feet of runway.

Three other fields were built in Iceland during the war—Kassos, Patterson and Reykjavik. Some of those strips were only 2,500 feet and the longest was 5,200.

Greenland, the subject of a recent agreement similar to that for Iceland, had three fields—all of them on the southern or western coasts. The longest strip there (and the only one now used by the U. S.) is the 6,500-foot runway at Narsarsuaq, near the south tip of Greenland.

In that same general area, the navy started in 1947 to construct a Grondal small naval operating base. Little was disclosed at that time about the project—and less has been said since. Such a base, however, obviously would be useful in fueling and providing light service for submarines and other scout craft.

The initial 200-man force that has landed in Iceland is only a tiny fraction of the approximate 50,000 there at one time in World War II. Of that total peak strength, about 32,000 were army personnel.

The program is arranged each year by the Friday Music club in observance of national music week. Participating in the program last night were 500 children from the Hope elementary schools, Mrs. E. C. Theme of the Festival this year was the "Story of America in Song." It portrayed in song and music the history of this nation from the early days of colonization through the present time. Complete with Indians and a chuckwagon, supplied by the Hope School in song.

The Festival was only one of the many events which will be held during the week of May 10-12.

Sinuiju Strip Smashed in Biggest Raid; Reds Give Fierce Air Resistance

Tokyo, May 9—(AP)—More than 300 Allied planes smashed an air field on the Korean border today to prevent an expected Communist aerial offensive.

It was the biggest raid since the war. But first official reports didn't look like much. The Air Force said two Red planes were damaged in the air, two destroyed and one was damaged on the ground.

Precisely what happened in the thundering raid was screened by flames and smoke. Returning pilots said 10 square miles were blanketed by smoke and flames. The target was Sinuiju, a town of 100,000 Red planes been spotted on the ground.

The attack was made by the bomber force, which came from every United Nations air field in Korea. For half an hour early Wednesday afternoon, the blasted and burned the airfield northwestern Korea.

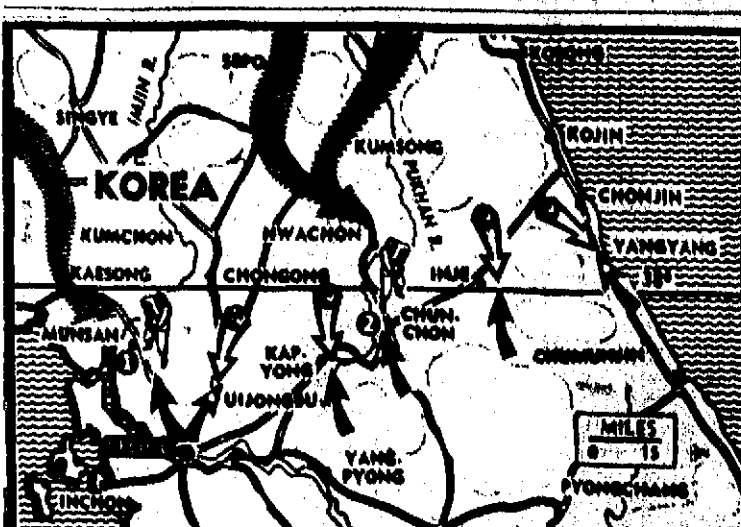

Eighty Russian type jet fighters were parked on its air field near the Yalu river from Sinuiju.

Fifty more, but Lt. Gen. E. B. Partridge, Fifth Air Force commander, said only 18 crossed the Yalu. A few air lights flared in the sky, and the Red jets were out in strength.

"It's a message," he said, "they are being massacred, not only one MIG was damaged and downed."

The big blow at Sinuiju, following reports that Chinese planes were attacking the Korean border, was a request for permission to broadcast the local American Legion baseball games this season has been denied by the Legion's baseball committee.

Negotiations are still underway to present daily broadcasts of major league games. A station spokesman indicated that the games would be carried on a daily basis either afternoon or night, starting at an early date.

KOREAN WAR MAP—South Koreans stabbed within 12 miles of the 38th parallel on the Munan (1) road as other Allied units pushed up east coast to point nine miles above the mythical boundary. In the middle of the front, UN tank patrols rumbled through Chunchon (2), pulling up short on the Pukhan River's south bank. Solid symbols on map show where enemy is reportedly building strength for new offensive. Shaded arrows mark key supply routes. (NEA Telephoto)

Government Pensions Take Biggest Share of Blame for Disappearance of Hoboes

By SAUL PETT
(For Hul Boyle)

New York—(AP)—Because of increasing paternalism in government and the high cost of living, the American hobo is rapidly becoming extinct.

"If this keeps up, there won't be one left in 20 years," says Ben Benson, four-time king of the hoboes. ("don't," he warns, "go putting quotes around my title because it's official, damn it.")

Ben is five feet tall, weighs 110 pounds, uses a hearing aid and talks faster than a used car salesman. In the last 50 years of bumming, he has covered more than 800,000 miles, he estimates.

Been on the road since I was 17," he says. "Never seen anything like it. Not one-tenth the hobo traveling nowadays there was 10, 15 years ago."

"Right here in New York, out of 10,000 men on the bawlers, maybe 6,000 used to be traveling bummers. Now there's an awful lot of age pensions. Can't travel. Got to show permanent residence to get those checks."

Migratory workers, Ben reports, don't get the work they used to around here because of the increasing mechanization of farms. Besides, farms don't operate more efficiently. The farm stops for black signals. Bums are picked up speed faster than the old locomotives and the farmer for a hobo to jump a train.

Such conditions are convenient for many hoboes, but Ben says they are not for the hobo who wants to travel.

Ben was picked up in his court-jump to king of the hoboes in a contest. He was in a hobo contest in New York City.

Moran Faces Sentence Today

New York, May 9 — (AP)— James J. Moran — holder of a lifetime $15,000-a-year city job just a few weeks ago — today faced the possibility of five years in a federal prison as a Kefauver committee perjurer.

Moran, a buddy of ex-Mayor William O'Dwyer for many years, was under conviction for lying about his relations with Brooklyn numbers racketeer Louis Weder.

Sentence will be imposed Friday by Federal Judge Charles J. Dewey. The maximum possible penalty for the perjury conviction is five years and a $2,000 fine.

Moran's counsel, Joseph L. Delaney, said he would advise Moran to appeal the sentence. No witnesses were called in Moran's defense, and he did not take the stand.

The 40-year-old politician is the first U. S. senate crime committee witness to be brought to trial here. The guilty verdict was reported late yesterday by a jury of seven women and five men after a trial lasting less than four court days. The jury deliberated only one hour and 35 minutes.

Moran remained free in $25,000 bail pending sentencing.

The defendant, a former first deputy fire commissioner, was convicted of perjury for testifying before the senate probes that Weber had visited him in his fire department office in more than six times between 1946 and 1950.

Prosecution witnesses told of at least 11 visits. Government counsel charged that Moran lied, and took the chance of a perjury trial, rather than leave the way open for further Kefauver committee questions.

Twelve additional cash prizes to students and eighteen cash awards to participating teachers were also given.

Each contest was judged by a separate panel of Southern educators, with the Grand Prize being judged by the President of the University of Arkansas, the Chancellor of the University of Mississippi, and the President of the University of Tennessee.

"We are extremely happy about the fine results of these contests," declared T. M. Martin, President of Lion Oil Company. "From the very first, students and teachers alike showed keen interest in the entire project. The high intellectual of the essays received, which numbered many thousands, reflects a great deal of credit on our young Southern people and on our educational system. Lion Oil wishes to thank every one who participated in any way to help make these contests so successful."

DOROTHY DIX Vindictive Wife

Dear Dorothy Dix: A married man, very honorable, conscientious and religious, became acquainted with a young unmarried woman of the same high high character. They were members of the same church and met quite often in church work. They were attracted to each other and before they realized it this attraction had deepened into love. They never held an intimate conversation and were never alone together at any time. They do not as

Biracial Jury Gives Negro Death

Blytheville, May 9 — (AP)— A biracial trail jury has sentenced Arthur Nox Gray, 21-year-old Negro, to death in the electric chair for the knife slaying of a white taxicab driver.

The jury, composed of eight white men and four Negroes, late yesterday found Gray guilty of first degree murder; the verdict carrying a death penalty.

Circuit Judge Charles W. Light of Paragould will pronounce formal sentence and fix the execution date.

The taxicab driver, Homer Tucker, 61, was stabbed to death and robbed near Blytheville last March 4. Sheriff William Berryman quoted Gray as saying he was a passenger in Tucker's cab when another Negro stabbed and robbed the driver.

Gray didn't take the stand at his trial, which started in Mississippi county circuit court Monday.

Berryman said Ollie Williams, 40, Jackson, Miss., Negro, had been identified as Gray's companion on the night of the slaying. No charge has been filed against Williams, now at state hospital for a mental examination.

It is of course a terrible thing for a man to fall out of love with his wife and in love with another woman, but the heart is an unruly member that we cannot always control. In this case, at least, the husband kept the letter if not the spirit of his marriage contract, and that is all that any human being can do. But he knew little of the nature of women if he was foolish enough to think that his wife would understand. It would take a bigger brain and a deeper heart than many woman possess to do that. A man never makes a greater mistake than when he tells his wife or any other woman he has ever loved. It only gives her food for thought.

Dear Miss Dix: My sister has been married to a seemingly nice man for 21 years. He is a splendid electrician, radio man, carpenter, plumber or painter and would be a good handy man in a hotel or apartment house, but he is discouraged that you seem to want to work. He has a job, he works hard and is well liked by the people he works for. In order to keep a neighbor's house and a great deal of time there, he works. As he received no work, he felt he was doing the house, but my sister's time is spent over the telephone. My sister and I have made payments on our home for years but I am not happy. Could you suggest any way a brother-in-law could help? He is 43 years old.

C. G. L.

Answer: Your brother sounds like a paragon. He would like to employ help in these harassed times. Men are in the armed services of one kind or work for the other. Every household and every man should be able to do his part. I am not sure how you could bring more work to him. You are abundant in all the services of a household. It would be very welcome.

DISCOURAGED
Answer: "Hell has no fury like a woman scorned," and this wife who had herself superadded in her husband's affection by another woman will never stop until she wrecks vengeance upon her rival. She will torture her in every way in her power and do everything possible to disgrace her and drag her down.

Girl Must Leave
There is no way in which the girl can defend herself against this bitter hate. The wisest thing for her to do is to go away from the scene of strife. It is the only possible way in which she can save not only her life but also her reputation, which is dearer than life to her. She should do this even if it involves causing her family to make some sacrifices, for it will save them from more suffering in the girl will at least have peace and the end. Away from the jealous wife a chance to rebuild her life.
